

Translations interviews in Line Five project

Interview 1

"It's the first time since the events, yes.

I'm ok. Yes, I'm ok... I'm doing worse than before, but I'm ok...

It's due to events. I'm searching for reasons. I know, it's all in the head.

I was very surprised by the way in which people reflect or don't reflect, by the way they were educated, and by religions which are not always a good motive for doing what we do. There's a fear. There's always that fear anyway.

We need to flip a page and hope it doesn't happen again.

There are things we can do, throw a look, a smile... That's enough."

Interview 2

In English.

Interview 3

"It's quite a rare concept in Belgium, Brussels.

There is certainly an atmosphere in Brussels which is shaped by the international factor, and by a lot of people piled up in one place.

I wouldn't call the atmosphere sociable at all. It's rather anti-social... But I can find myself in it. You know, Brussels is Brussels, I can't describe it otherwise."

Interview 4

"Usually everyone keeps to themselves, or to their own group.

I keep a distance. It always depends on the type of people who come up to me, I think...

I'm waiting to see how things will go now, where I should go.

I'll let things come my way."

Interview 5

In English.